PATRICK MARTIN

LE CORDON BLEU | HOSTED BY THE REGENT SINGAPORE

On the road to becoming Vice-President of the legendary culinary school – Le Cordon Bleu – Patrick Martin's career in gastronomy is entwined with royalty and fame.

Le Cordon Bleu, "The Blue Ribbon" in English, has been a name synonymous with excellence since the 16th century. Paralleled to its excellence, Martin's culinary fineness has gained recognition and won over the refined palates of some renowned dignitaries, such as former Prime Minister of Great Britain – Margaret Thatcher – and the King of Morocco.

With over 25 years of experience worldwide and as the distinguished international ambassador of Le Cordon Bleu, Martin travels worldwide to teach Le Cordon Bleu's methods and 'L'Art de Vivre' as well as to do technical development of Le Cordon Bleu's international schools. Martin is also a two-time recipient of the Gold Medal of the Culinary Academy of France, and a winner of the prestigious French National Trophy for Cuisine and Pastry.
